MY LIFE

These coming years I'd like to be a friend to every one;
 I'd like to feel each day well spent
 at setting of the sun;
 I'd like to be the kind of person
 every one will love,
 And make this world seem just a little more like heaven above.
 I'd like in all my dealings, to be true and just and fair;
 That God will help me do these things shall be my daily prayer.

John Hollingsworth's Death Fought for Four Hours Before Learning Peace Was Made

SEVENTY-TWO YEARS AGO, on a spring morning, a great, dark, compact man faced a sharp, sunny, faded, broken hearted soldier across a muddy, rutted field. The man in the uniform of the United States Army was General Robert E. Lee. The man in the uniform of the United States Army was John Hollingsworth. The two men were engaged in a struggle that would last for four hours before the general learned that peace had been made.

This is a reconstruction sketch of the small village of Appomattox Court House, where Lee, Grant and the soldiers met to discuss the terms of the surrender. The scene is shown as it appeared in 1865.

John A. Hollingsworth, a prominent citizen of Kansas City, Mo., died last night at the age of 82. He was born in 1855 and spent his early years in Missouri. He was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic and was active in its ranks for many years.
