I got just three things:

1. Do your duty to keep the memory of the Union veterans fresh in the memory of the country.
2. The Central Region Allied Orders Conference is for everyone and so is the ceremony at the Lincoln Tomb, please consider signing up for both events. Sign up pages are late on in this newsletter.
3. I'm working on a contract that will allow members to post their books, Civil War and GAR related items on our webpages and if agreed to, this newsletter. The plan is that if we allow this a percentage of the proceeds must be given to the Department of Missouri (if sold through those venues). This will probably be voted on at the department encampment. So bring your thoughts there.

. He served as First Master on the gunboat St. Louis (pictured above with Brown Water Fleet). He assisted in the Union gunboat attacks that captured strategic Fort Henry on the Tennessee River February 6, 1862. The night of April 1/2, 1862 he was the Naval commander of a combined Army-Navy boat expedition which landed and spiked the guns of the Upper Battery a.k.a. Battery No. 1 at Madrid Bend (Tennessee shore) across the river from the Confederate stronghold, Island No. 10. He was promoted to Acting Volunteer Lieutenant for gallantry in this expedition. After joining in the bombardments of Vicksburg, Mississippi, he took command of USS Forest Rose (pictured below) to patrol the Mississippi River and its tributaries. On February 15, 1864 his gunboat repelled the attack of confederate raiders, saving the town of Waterproof, Louisiana, and its federal garrison. Lt. Johnston resigned from the naval service on June 23, 1864 and died on April 22, 1912 at St. Louis, Missouri. During World War II, two destroyers were named USS Johnston in his honor.

This past year, the General Thomas C. Fletcher camp #47, has been working with the Jefferson County Historical Society. It is the bicentennial of Jefferson County. Throughout the year, the Thomas C. Fletcher Camp has participated in numerous events. One of the activities the Historical Society is working on is a county museum.. They are collecting all sorts of items from the county. On touring the museum, located in Festus, I ran across a beautiful chair that once was in the Festus Grand Army of the Republic hall.

This ornate tall back chair came from Missouri G.A.R. Post 543 located in Festus. The Post was known as the Bell Post. Upon the break-up of the post, its furnishings were dispersed with three chairs ending up on a Masonic Hall in a nearby town. They were kept in storage for many years until they recently emerged. One chair is now on display at the society museum. The chair has a black leather cover. At top are G.A.R. letters which overlay a laurel design and cross swords. Both the letters and swords are painted gold. At some point casters were added. This allowed the chair to move more easily. Below, is Allison W. Nees, a member of the Bell Post and the ribbon he wore. During the Civil War, Mr. Nees served in Company B of the 12th Missouri Cavalry.

Here are some additional pieces of furniture that have come out of other G.A.R. post. One piece should look very familiar to you.

This high back officer's chair is oak. It has a crest with intertwined G.A.R. letters. This chair can be found in the G.A.R. museum in Springfield, Illinois. Note the handmade picture on the wall next to the chair. It is a membership badge of the Grand Army made in Crewel. (a loosely twisted woolen yarn used in embroidery)

This beautiful hand crafted altar was originally in a G.A.R. Post in Illinois. It is now the property of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, US Grant Camp 68, loaned to the dept of Missouri. It is used to hold the Bible at meetings. The table shows a great deal of workmanship. It is not known if it was originally made by a member of an Illinois Post or was a commercial item. The table top is supported by a wooden cannon surrounded by stacks of 4 cannon balls on all sides. Eight Civil War rifles, with bayonet hold the table top. Between the bayonets are golden eagles holding a ribbon. This table has been restored.

The table on the left is another example of the used of cannon. The upright barrels holds the top. The barrels are painted gray. They are held in place by the trunions and sit on a flat board. This table was found in a flea market in Massachusetts. It was purchased and now resides in a restored G.A.R. Post.

Dedication

In acknowledgement of the men and women of the SUVCW (Sons of the Union Veterans of the Civil War) and ASUVCW (Auxiliary to the Sons of the Union Veterans of the Civil War), whose preservation for the memory of our Union soldier ancestors is an extraordinary combination of hard work and dedication.

Introduction

It seems as though we eagerly place the title of “hero” on many men and women down through our past. Many are very worthy of this appointment, have worn this badge honorably, and entered into history with all the proper distinction and fame they deserve. Others, although serving their fellow man with dignity, or exemplary performance of their duties, may not be so entitled of this lofty addition to their moniker. Many talented athletes, entertainers, and political leaders have been bestowed this title, yet in actuality their contribution to society may not have reached the level of “heroism.”

Historians have reserved this title for those that perform over and above what is expected of them. Men and women that, through their heroic actions, made a significant difference in the betterment of mankind. Thomas Clement Fletcher was that type of person, a true hero. Through his efforts and personal sacrifices, he affectively improved the lives of thousands.

Thomas Fletcher was a pioneer in the railroad business, partly responsible for the introduction of rail lien extention into rural Missouri, providing good paying jobs for hundreds. His vision and dedication proved tital in the formation of an entire town. His influence in antebellum politics helped elect Abraham Lincoln into office. During the Civil War, he served as an infantry officer in command of hundreds of Union troops, exemplifying himself in battle, where he was wounded and imprisoned by the enemy. Later he was promoted to general. Fletcher was elected the first governor of Missouri following the Civil War and the first native born governor of the state. He skillfully brought Missouri through the reconstruction years, successfully carried out the emancipation of slaves, and aggressively pursued the remnants of criminal guerilla bands still rampaging across the state. All this while reconstructing the entire public school system and stabling education for the new freed Black Americans.

There are few men in Missouri history that can claim the amount of accomplishments made by Thomas Fletcher. His leadership during our country’s worst period continues to influence our lives today. All Missourians owe a debt of gratitude to this great man. He was the type of leader this country needs today during our time of divisiveness. He was truly “the hero from Jefferson County, Missouri.”

The Hero from Jefferson County, Missouri

Thomas Clement Fletcher was born in Herculaneum, Jefferson County, Missouri, on January 22, 1827, the son of Clement Bell “Judge” Fletcher, a merchant, and Margaret S. Byrd. Thomas the fourth of 10 children. His siblings were Margaret E. (b. 1818), John William (b. 1819), Cecilia Adeline (b. 1823), Percy (b. 1827), Clementine (b. 1830), Charles Carroll (b. 1830), Josephine (b. 1833), Perry (b. 1834), and Ann M. (b. ?).

His parents had immigrated to Missouri from Somerset, Maryland, in 1818. As there were no public schools in Jefferson County at the time, young Fletcher attended the subscription school of Willard Frissell, who had come there from Massachusetts. At age seventeen Fletcher secured employment in the Jefferson County circuit clerk’s office, advancing to the position of deputy two years later, and was elected to that office in 1849. He married Mary Clarissa Honey, his childhood sweetheart in 1851 and had his home built at 401 Elm Street, Hillsboro, Missouri, that same year. They had two children, Edward Louis (b. 1852—d. 1908) and Francis Ella (Barthlow) (b. 1854).

In 1856 he was appointed land agent for the southwest branch of the Pacific Railroad and moved with his family to St. Louis. Although he came from a slaveholding family, Fletcher followed the lead of Senator Thomas Hart Benton in opposing slavery's extension. He campaigned actively for Benton in the gubernatorial race in Iron Mountain and Southern Railway Depot, DeSoto, Mo.

1856. Following Benton's defeat, Fletcher was admitted to the bar in 1857 and joined Frank Blair, B. Gratz Brown, and other former Benton Democrats in organizing the Republic Party.

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railway announced plans in 1851 to build a railroad from St. Louis to Iron County. Fletcher formed a partnership with his brother-in-law, Louis Rankin, and purchased land in southern Jefferson County where the railroad would be constructed. The town was platted in 1857. Fletcher named the town in honor of the explorer Hernando de Soto, who claimed for Spain the area that became the Louisiana Territory. The two founders built a station house for the railroad and planned for homes to be built on large lots on the east side of town, with smaller lots for railroad workers' houses on the west. De Soto's post office was established and an auction of town lots took place.

Fletcher built a home there and moved his family to the new town in 1860. That same year he served as a delegate to the Republican National Convention in Chicago, which nominated Abraham Lincoln for the presidency, and he took an active role in the ensuing campaign.

From the Missouri Republican. 25 September 1864, Page 2 Column 3

[The Missouri Republican was the Democratic newspaper of Missouri and the Missouri Democrat was the Republican one. Go Figure. Here is what the Democratic raglan newspaper thought days before the Battle of Pilot Knob, a battle that helped propel Fletcher into the Governorship. — transcribed by Walt Busch.]

Fletcher Sold to the Democrat.

It would appear that Gen. Fremont's withdrawal has been a God-send to Col. Fletcher, the Radical candidate for Governor of this State. He has been represented as for some time anxious for an opening that might allow him to take sides in the Presidential contest, and as desirous to have Fremont abandon the race, that he (Fletcher) could make a half-way decent pretext for espousing the cause of "Honest Old Abe." We do not say nor believe that Col. Fletcher likes Lincoln any more than thousands of other Republicans do; but we think it no less true than natural that he has never been a sincere admirer of Fremont either. At the time of the quarrel of the Pathfinder with Frank Blair, resulting in the arrest of the latter, Fletcher sympathized with Frank, believing that the latter would eventually get the better of the affair and come out in the lead as he had generally done. The case was altered somewhat when the Missouri Democrat, quite unexpectedly forsook Blair, and when Henry T. Blow, Esq., divorced himself in the same direction. Fletcher now recognizes the Democrat as the ruling influence in this State so far as the Radical party is concerned; and knowing he is not to be elected Governor, he keeps an eye to the future. People say his health is not of a character to justify him in forming ambitious plans for many years ahead, but we have observed that when the love of office once takes possession of a man sanitary conditions are not apt to interfere. The Democrat has been tinkering with Fletcher on the Lincoln question, and no doubt promising him its support for an office under Lincoln's Administration. It was, therefore, without surprise that we read the following in a special St. Louis dispatch to the Chicago Tribune, written by an attaché of the Democrat:

"The withdrawal of Fremont has created general satisfaction among moderate Germans who were anxious for an appropriate opportunity to come out for Lincoln. A few crazy Fremonters like Moss, late editor of the Radical Democrat will go for McClellan. A happy riddance. Henry T. Blow, M.G., Gratz Brown, and others, will support Lincoln heartily.

"The Radical candidate for Governor will shortly publish a letter in favor of Lincoln. He has been suspected of Fremontism. The leading Claybank friends of Blair, who are announced for McClellan are going where they belong. Most of them were for Bell and Douglas in 1860."

We can afford to do entire justice to our contemporary, the Democrat, and do not hesitate to say that it has managed its political course with consummate adroitness. It is perfectly justified in crowing, as it does, over Fremont's withdrawal as a vindication of the Democrat's "sagacity." The Democrat had more to do in making the Cleveland movement abortive than any combination of causes that could be named. The sending of a Radical delegation from this State to the Baltimore Convention was our neighbor's work, and when, after it had been admitted, the editor of the Democrat moved to make the nomination of Lincoln unanimous, he smote the Fremont business full in the head. Radical politicians and people throughout the country who had been dissatisfied and disgusted with the Administration, concluded that if the Missouri Radicals, who had made the most fuss in reference thereto, could stand a perpetuation of its power, they certainly ought to do so likewise, and hence Fremont was allowed to slide, while the leaders generally took up Lincoln with the best grace they could muster. If, by possibility, "Old Abe" should be re-elected, a just sense of his obligations will not leave the Democrat office unremembered. This reflection has not escaped Col. Fletcher. Pride alone would urge the Radical newspaper organ to enlist as many as practicable in behalf of the Lincoln ticket, to still further indicate its course. Events seem to show that, if Col. Fletcher has been dumb, he has not also been deaf or blind.

Governor Fletcher announces to President Lincoln the freeing of Missouri's slaves.
"Free Mo greets her elder sisters."

Capture the Flag: High-Stakes, Conspicuous Gallantry in the American Civil War

By Randal A. Burd, Jr., PDC

What do the Worrill Grays, Chalmers' Division, and the 50th Virginia Infantry all have in common? All three Confederate units had their colors captured by Medal of Honor recipients who are buried in Missouri. Of the 35 Medal of Honor recipients honored for acts of valor during the Civil War who are buried in Missouri, 12 of these individuals received their award for either capturing the flag of the enemy or defending the colors of their regiment from imminent capture. So, what is the significance of capturing a flag in battle?

In a time before radio communication, flags were vital points of reference to direct soldiers on the battlefield. The colors carried by regiments led soldiers into battle and directed their movements, often serving as rallying points in the noise and smoke of mid-battle chaos. The fact that the flags were so vital to the successful function of military regiments made them prime targets of enemy soldiers, sharpshooters, and cannon. This in turn also ensured these flags were extremely well protected—the fighting was often the thickest around the regimental colors and thus any soldier who could penetrate the defenses around an enemy's flag and return with it to their own lines showed tremendous bravery in the face of mortal peril.

The exploits of Cpl. Harrison Collins near Richmond Creek on December 24, 1864, were recounted in a letter from Brigadier General John T. Croxton to Lt. Colonel A. J. Alexander, Chief of Staff of the Cavalry Corps. General Croxton writes:

"I have the honor to forward herewith a rebel battle-flag captured from Chalmers' division yesterday evening. The capture was made by Corpl. Harrison Collins, Company A, First Tennessee Cavalry. The corporal saw the rebel standard bearer, under the direction of a rebel major, trying to rally his men. He determined to have the flag; led a charge, killed the major, routed his men, and secured the flag."

Capturing an enemy flag was almost always an impressive feat, but one must assume that some instances made better stories than others. Such was likely the case for Captain Patrick H. Pentzer, who was among the first Union soldiers to reach Confederate entrenchments during the Battle of Fort Blakeley, Alabama, and thus was positioned to personally receive the surrender of a Confederate general officer and his headquarters flag. While the circumstances of this event surely made for a good story, Pentzer was just one of 10 Union soldiers awarded the Medal of Honor for capturing a flag during this assault on April 9, 1865.

In addition to the nine Union soldiers buried in Missouri who were awarded the Medal of Honor for capturing a flag of the enemy, three such soldiers received the Medal of Honor for risking their lives to defend their regiment's colors.

Although he had already been granted a medical furlough due to his wounds from Antietam, German-born Pvt. (later 1st Lt.) Martin Schubert picked up the colors after several color bearers had been killed or wounded during the Battle of Fredericksburg and carried them until he was wounded again. Paul Taylor's 2005 book, Glory was Not Their Companion: The Twenty-Sixth New York Volunteer Infantry, published Schubert's own recollection of the event:

Medal of Honor Recipients Buried in Missouri
Who Captured or Recovered Flags

Soldier's Name	Flag(s) Captured
Cpl. Harrison Collins	"Chalmers' Division," C.S.A.
Cpl. Daniel I. Holcomb	"Confederate Guidon"
Pvt. William T. Holmes	27th Virginia Infantry, C.S.A.
Pvt. Aaron Hudson	"Worrill Grays," C.S.A.
Cpl. Oliver Hughes	11th South Carolina, C.S.A.
Cpl. James K. Merrifield	"2 battle flags from the enemy"
Pvt. John N. Opel	50th Virginia Infantry, C.S.A.
Cpt. Patrick H. Pentzer	general officer's "headquarters flag"
Pvt. John H. Ricksecker	16th Alabama Artillery, C.S.A.

"My old wound, not yet healed, gave me considerable trouble. I went into the battle [Fredericksburg] with the regiment, however, against the protests of my colonel and captain, who insisted that I should use the furlough. I thought the Government needed me on the battlefield rather than at home."

Corporal (later Major) Henry D. O'Brien took up the fallen colors of his 1st Minnesota Infantry during the infamously tragic "Pickett's Charge" at the Battle of Gettysburg and fearlessly rushed the enemy. Caleb Jackson of Company G apparently witnessed the event and provided this account (the primary source document is unknown):

Soldier's Name	Flag(s) Recovered
Cpt. Freeman Davis	80th Ohio Infantry, U.S.A.
Cpl. Henry D. O'Brien	1st Minnesota Infantry, U.S.A.
1Lt. Martin Schubert	26th New York Infantry, U.S.A.

"When General Pickett made his famous charge his men succeeded in striking our line near a battery and close to our right flank and for a moment it seemed that we would be overwhelmed. At this critical time the last of our color guards was shot and the flag fell to the ground. Corporal Henry D. O'Brien, of Company E, though not a member of the color guard instantly seized it and waving it over his head rushed ahead of the Regiment and close up to the muzzles of the Confederate muskets. His example was quickly followed by the rest of the men and the Confederates were beaten back leaving the colors of the 28th Virginia with our command.

"Corporal O'Brien's action at that time was fearless and as daring as anything I saw during the war, and there is no doubt in my mind that it was one of the principal causes that led to the defeat of the Confederates at that point. I looked at his face and smiled as he broke off a piece of the shattered staff and threw it to the ground and marched on. He was struck in the head by a musket ball and although stunned by the force of the blow he held to the colors until he was again struck in the left hand. This occurred at the moment of victory."

The Battle of Missionary Ridge was part of the Chattanooga Campaign fought between Union General Ulysses S. Grant and Confederate General Braxton Bragg. Captain Freeman Davis recovered two flags of his 80th Ohio Infantry after both color bearers were shot down during the successful assault on the ridge on November 25, 1863. The Ohio Illustrated Magazine for January 1907 contains an article mentioning Davis's courageous feats, "Eight Buckeyes at Missionary Ridge," by Joseph Olds Gregg, who was Past Department Commander of the Department of Montana, G.A.R.:

“When Freeman Davis, of Company B, saw the two flags go down with their bearers and exposed to capture by the enemy, who were pushing the regiment back, he ran back in the face of the deadly fire directed at him, caught up a flag with each hand and successfully bore them to a place of safety. In view of these heroic deeds, here described in detail from the official records and the testimony of eye-witnesses, it seems no wonder that a clean majority of all the medals awarded by Congress for conspicuous gallantry at Missionary Ridge, were given to sons of Ohio.”

The capture and recovery of regimental colors provided opportunities for soldiers to demonstrate conspicuous gallantry in the face of danger, and these events strongly influenced the outcome of battles and maybe the war. While, unfortunately, some of those credited with bravery for capturing colors in the American Civil War obtained flags abandoned on the field or confiscated from their subordinates, many more of these tales—such as those related here—recount genuine acts of inspiring courage and sacrifice.

If you have any ideas, contacts to share with us, etc. Please contact Bob Petrovic, chairman of the committee, at rpetro7776@aol.com or Walt Busch, sec-treasurer of the committee at wbusch@suvchwmo.org. We will be having another major organizational meeting in the next few months and will be sending out an invite to all camps to send one member to the meeting. We hope all can participate and make this a truly department function.

Commander Dale Crandell's Department Message

An advantage of being Department Commander is attending national and local Civil War related events. Each week brings at least one invitation from an Allied Order, Civil War Roundtable, historical society, or community group. I've attempting to make a monthly pilgrimage to at least one Camp sponsored activity. What I've observed is how each Camp has their own perspective on how to honor our Civil War ancestors and interact with their community. Collectively, we touch on all four areas outlined in our national campaign.

Preservation. The SUVCW is actively engaged in Civil War preservation to ensure that the history and the memories of those that fought it, never fades. Our Camps routinely identify, preserve, and commemorate local battlefields and gravesites of Union soldiers, sailors, and marines.

Education. The SUVCW is dedicated to educating the public about this defining period in American history, to honor those that fought, and to ensure that history is not repeated. Our Camps conduct research on the Civil War in Missouri and Arkansas, feeding information and documents to a host of websites and archives. Often, our local member is the local expert and first contact for historians and the press-media.

Patriotism and Citizenship. As defined by our federal charter, the SUVCW is dedicated to teaching patriotism and the duties of citizenship to ensure that this great nation, as set forth by our Founding Fathers, remains strong. Our Camps are present in schools and community events. When a history program or color guard is needed, our SUVCW Camps are called.

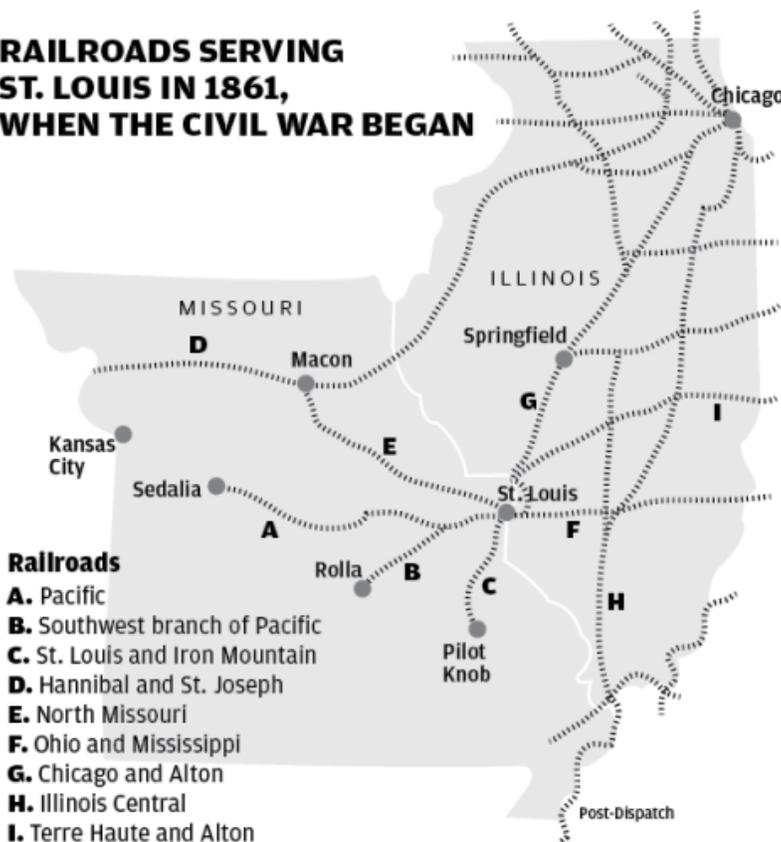

Honor. As legal heirs to the GAR, we carry on the traditions of honoring the flag, those that served this nation, and those that made the supreme sacrifice in defending this nation. Our Camps, SVR units, and members are genuine patriots. When we attend commemorations, dedications, parades, and memorials –particularly when in Union uniform –we bring respect and authenticity. Our GAR predecessors would be proud for their sons.

In Fraternity, Charity, and Loyalty,

Dale Crandell

In memory of Brother Marks, the Department’s Charter and website shall be draped, all Camp Charters and websites shall be draped, and all brothers shall attach a black mourning ribbon to their membership badge. Battlefield Relic.

The Kansas City Reporter says:

A citizen has shown us a relic of the battlefield—a Springfield musket, found lying by the side of a dead rebel. The gun was half cocked when found, and loaded with two bullets. The fatal shot had passed through under the hammer, grazing the stock of the gun, and striking the rebel in the breast. Carved on the butt of the musket is the name of the owner—John Murdock, Co. “B,” 13th Arkansas, C.S.A.

The American Battlefield Trust has set April 6th a battlefield clean up day. This is for your state battlefields. This is an opportunity for you to get your name in the paper and make contact with your local state battlefield. This is a great way to recruit!

National public radio is also a place where you can get the SUVCW name out there. They make public announcements about events like the battlefield clean up day.

Let the local TV stations know about your cleaning up the Battlefields.

We need to do all we can to get the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War name out there.

Columbia Post #432 – Grand Army of the Republic

Compiled by: James R Dixon, PCC

The earliest record that I have been found so far in regards to the G.A.R. Post in Columbia, Missouri is a newspaper clipping from January 16, 1903, in “The Professional World”. It has an article about local African-Americans holding an Emancipation Anniversary at the Second Baptist Church on Broadway. The lively event celebrated the 38th Anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation on January 11th, 1903. The event started with a song by the church congregation together with scripture readings. They sang songs like, “John Brown”, and heard guest speakers consisting of local soldiers who served in the late war. Two members of the church who planned and engaged the social event were Sergeants Wallace Lilly, and Commander Tarlton (Talton) Woods, who was then the Commander of Columbia G.A.R. Post (432).

Newspaper mentions of any Post are very scarce in the press until 1910. If mentioned, no name was given. There is an article in the local paper during Memorial Day explaining that there is no G.A.R. post in Columbia like there are in other cities around the state. The writer explains that there has never been a Decoration Day observed for the old veterans graves in the Columbia Cemetery where there are many buried. It also states that there was a Post in the latter years of the 1800s but has since ceased.

On May 20th, 1916, “The Kansas City Sun”, published an obituary for the death of Talton Woods. He died at his home in Columbia, Mo at the age of 72. It mentions his membership in the G.A.R. and Masonic Lodge in Columbia.

This is when we believe Sgt. Wallace Lilly took over as Post Commander for the African-American Columbia G.A.R. Post. Wallace was a Sgt in the USCT, the same as Talton. Wallace was also a native of Boone County and had his own blacksmith shop in town. Wallace was very influential in the marking of the graves in Columbia Cemetery of USCT. Many of the soldiers he served with had their bodies sent back to Columbia to be buried.

There are few articles about the activities that the Post sponsored, one of which was on July 14th, 1920. Wallace was given a uniform by his friends like the one he wore in the Army. It mentions both Black and White gave money to get him the uniform, this shows how much he was revered in the community. The article reports that many of the USCT graves were unmarked or marked with wooden crosses and were decorated each Memorial Day by the Post.

May 8th, 1922 is the last known article that refers to the Columbia Post. It reads that, “There is not a post for Whites in Columbia, but there is a Negro Post.” It talks about the State Encampment that was being held in Sedalia at the Fairgrounds. It states that Lilly is the Commander but was too sick to attend, and being 81 years old. The Post sent Matthew Douglass, a veteran, and Secretary to the Columbia Post.

The Columbia G.A.R. Post 432’s history is still in the process of being researched and recovered. We, as members of the Columbia Tiger Camp #432, SUVCW, strive to discover the history of our past brothers who lived and served in the community here in Columbia. We hope to honor and remember those who should never be forgotten.

CAMP DISPATCHES

Grant Camp

Grant Camp welcomes the following new members:

1. Brent Canterbury who is overseas working for our county.
2. Craig Mathews of Ballwin, MO
3. Jim Morrison of St. Louis, MO, who is heavily involved in the local German community. Prosit!
4. Thomas N. Taylor of Chesterfield whose ancestor served with the USCT.
5. Larry Von Behren of Webster Groves, whose wife also recently joined the local DUVCW
6. Greg Wolk, dual member with St. James Camp

All new members of the US Grant Camp receive a name tag (although it may take a few months to get one) .

Other tidbits:

1. Grant Camp purchased a solar flag pole light to be installed on the pole by General Sherman's grave in Calvary Cemetery.
2. We are the host camp for the Central Region Association Meeting to be held in Springfield, IL on Apr 12 & 13. Still time to sign up for this and Lincoln Tomb Ceremonies. Sign-ups on following pages.
3. Several members showed up at Jefferson Barracks to honor Lt. Col. Jack Grothe as he was laid to rest. John Avery showed up in the uniform of our new GAR Ceremonial Unit (Membership app also in following pages). Other members who came included PCC Bob Aubuchon, PDC Walt Busch, PCC Sumner Hunnewell, and new member Jim Morrison, who came as a member of Jack's church.
4. Upcoming events have been planned for the year so check out the calendar of events on page 2 of the Unionist for that information.

German Initiation?? Brüderlichkeit, Nächstenliebe und Loyalität!

Brother PCC Sumner Hunnewell's wife, Sylvia, has some relatives coming over this spring from Germany. Sylvia grew up in a German speaking family. The husband is an American Civil War fanatic and an artillery reenactor in Germany. Sumner asked us to have a special meeting and initiation of the man and since he can't speak English, Walt Busch has been working on a translation (with the help of a friend) so that we can conduct the entire initiation in German.

National SUVCW recognized an English SUVCW Camp recently. Can a German Camp be far behind?

St. James Camp

Brother Jack Grothe

It is with sadness and a feeling of great loss to not only to our camp but also we feel to the Department of Missouri and our National SUVCW Organization the passing of Brother Jack Grothe on March 13th at the age of 79 years.

This photo was taken last April 8th of members of our camp after our participation in paying respects to the memory of Lt. Col. J. Felix St. James by standing guard at his grave site on the day of his death. We also participated in the ceremony to pay respects to all Scottish buried in the cemetery. This was the last time that we were privileged to have Brother Jack and Sister Maggie present in one of our camp activities.

PAST ACTIVITIES OF THE CAMP

29 January 2019

A great bunch of home schoolers. Gary Scheel went to Bonne Terre and gave a Civil War presentation to this good bunch of kids. They listened to him for about an hour and forty-five minutes. He discussed the equipment of a Union soldier. He passed around shell fragments, grape shot and bullets that were from Shepherd Mountain given to him by Ron Warren.

3 pound cannon ball dug up at Farmington in the late 1960's given to him by Bryan Williams. He showed them the three basic uniform coats and four basic head gear. And he told them a lot about the Civil War.

Coming Event

Civil War Presentation April 9th

The Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War Camp 326 will be having a presentation on Tuesday, April 9th at 7:00 PM in the Orris Theatre. Scott House, a Civil War author from Cape Girardeau, will be discussing "Things You Never Knew About the Battle of Pilot Knob". The Battle of Pilot Knob, also known as the Battle of Fort Davidson, was the opening engagement of Price's Missouri Raid during the American Civil War. It was the largest engagement in our area of Missouri. This presentation is free and open to the public.

Medal of Honor Commemoration

DUVCW Macklind Tent #24 hosted a commemoration for Medal of Honor recipient Herbert Hoover Burr (1920-1990) for National Medal of Honor Day. SUVCW Westport Camp #64 along with the SAR Truman Chapter and 1812 Society's Captain Daniel Morgan Boone Chapter provided a timeline color guard for the commemoration. Brother Kenneth Bailey served as chaplain.

Herbert Burr was born in St. Joseph and raised in Kansas City. He joined the U.S. Army during World War II and served with Company C, 41st Tank Battalion. On 19 March 1945, Staff Sergeant Burr's tank was hit by enemy fire near Dorrmoschel, Germany forcing the crew to abandon the tank. Staff Sergeant Burr remained and completed their mission and later provided medical assistance. He was presented the Medal of Honor by President Harry S Truman on 30 August 1945 [pictured right]. The commemoration was held at Mount Washington Cemetery in Independence, Missouri.

For a complete account of Herbert Hoover Burr's service read "Hometown Hero: Alone in a Burning Tank in WWII" in the Kansas City Star (<https://www.kansascity.com/news/local/article107262982.html>)

National Medal of Honor Day

Often called the Congressional Medal of Honor, the United States Congress designated March 25th of each year as National Medal of Honor Day, a day dedicated to honoring the over 3,400 men and women whose service and sacrifices were recognized with the nation's highest medal for valor, the Medal of Honor. Westport Camp #64 dressed each of the five Civil War Medal of Honor recipients buried in the Kansas City area for National Medal of Honor Day.

Private Wilbur Moore (1840-1924) for action at the Battle of Nashville, while serving with Company C, 117th Illinois Infantry.

Fletcher Camp

After a whirlwind tour of Jefferson County's 2018 bicentennial celebrations, the Camp is easing into 2019. For the second year running, we held our Christmas banquet at Pogolino's in De Soto on December 14 – with about 40 members and guests attending. Camp Commander Don Lillicrap presented Certificates of Commendation to brothers Bernard Laiben (for his work chairing the Jefferson County 200 celebrations) and Leonard Wright (for his work with the Camp). He also presented the same award to The Leader (Leader Publications) for their coverage of the Camp and Auxiliary's activities all year long. Department Commander Dale Crandell traveled from Kansas City to install officers (no changes other than Hunnewell elected Secretary to fill in Ollie Pechmann's place). PDC Chris Warren installed the officers of the Auxiliary.

The Camp hosted a guest at the February meeting at our new HQ, First United Methodist Church in Festus. Author Dr. Stephen F. Huss discussed the military and civil life of our camp's namesake, Gen. Thomas C. Fletcher. Dr. Huss recently published Rediscovering Thomas C. Fletcher: The Lost Missouri Governor, which he dedicated to the Fletcher House Foundation, our Camp and Auxiliary, and his grandchildren. (Half of the profits of the book will be donated to the Foundation.) At this meeting Brother PCC Doug Roussin also donated to the Jefferson County Historical Society a display case of Civil War era bullets. Brother Bernard Laiben, who accepted the case, is the president of the Society (pictured above).

We have procured a 30" cement statue of a soldier from the wrong side of the Rebellion for a Camp raffle. (Any camp member can provide raffle details.) [Editor – Pictured right - It could always be painted the correct colors!]

We are gearing up JROTC/JROTC season with plans to provide certificates and medals to winners in four schools in the coming months. Other plans include: a school "encampment" program in May and (artillery) School of the Piece in June. Sometime soon, we will also have drills to make our SVR unit more effective.

The Camp has a monthly newsletter. Anyone wishing a copy need only write to the Camp Secretary at hildifonstook@prodigy.net.

Info from the Turner Brigade and US Grant Camp 68

By Randy Baehr, St. James Camp

Brigade members are invited to participate in the annual Memorial Day Service at the Jefferson Barracks National Cemetery in south St. Louis County, Missouri, on Monday, May 27, presented by the Inter-Veterans Memorial Day Service Committee. Company G will join the honor guard, and Company M will provide one gun for the Civil War portion of the program.

Participants should park at the gravel parking lot in Sylvan Springs County Park across the street from the cemetery by at least 9:00 a.m to get a place to park. This lot is at the top of the hill near the end of the park property closest to the cemetery main entrance. The main ceremony starts at 10:00 a.m. with a parade a point about halfway from the administration building/chapel area to the reviewing stand and then to main flagpole, about quarter mile. Civil War units will march closer to the beginning of the parade. The organizers especially want uniformed men with muskets for an honor guard next to the symbolic caskets. Reenactors will rotate posts with members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion. Since there is an increasing shortage of living veterans, the honor guard would like four reenactor guards for the first two rotations during the parade. The parade, speakers, and music program take about 2 hours. Participants then proceed to the Civil War cemetery area where a Union Civil War ceremony will be conducted by the U.S. Grant Camp #68 of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, with a musket and artillery salute, followed by a Confederate ceremony. For more information, contact Steve Allen at (573)265-1930 or email steveallen855@centurytel.net or Greg Zelinske at (618)624-5840 or cwbluebelly@sbcglobal.net.
