

PLATTE COUNTY IN THE CIVIL WAR

Originally placed in Platte City

REMOVED

According to Greg Wolk, Director, Missouri Civil War Heritage Foundation in November 2020:
Here's the scoop: the Attack on Camden Point was installed on the wall of the Weston Historical Museum; the other Platte County sign was installed in Platte City but later removed. Based on a quick look at Google maps, looks like the Weston sign has also been removed. These were sponsored by Sons of Confederate Veterans, and it looks like things have gotten PC even in Platte County.

Platte City in the Civil War

Missouri's CIVIL WAR

From Missouri!

For nearly 150 years, the people of Platte City have been proud to call this town home. The town's rich history is reflected in its architecture, its traditions, and its people. The town's history is a testament to the spirit of Missouri.

The Platte City Courthouse, built in 1857, is a landmark of the town's history. It is a fine example of the architecture of the time.

The town's rich history is reflected in its architecture, its traditions, and its people. The town's history is a testament to the spirit of Missouri.

Missouri's Civil War Heritage Foundation

Learn more at www.mocivilwar.org

Copyright © 2009 Missouri Civil War Heritage Foundation, Inc.

Captain John C. Johnson, a native Platte City resident, was one of the many who served in the Missouri State Militia. He was a member of the 1st Missouri State Militia and was killed in action at the Battle of Pea Ridge in 1862.

On July 1, 1861, Missouri, with its Confederate sympathies, was the first state to secede from the Union. This was a major blow to the Union. The state's secession was a result of the pro-secessionist sentiment that had spread throughout the state. The state's secession was a result of the pro-secessionist sentiment that had spread throughout the state.

When the war began in 1861, the Confederate forces moved on to Platte City. The town was a strategic location for the Confederates. The town was a strategic location for the Confederates. The town was a strategic location for the Confederates.

He was a member of the 1st Missouri State Militia and was killed in action at the Battle of Pea Ridge in 1862.

He was a member of the 1st Missouri State Militia and was killed in action at the Battle of Pea Ridge in 1862.

He was a member of the 1st Missouri State Militia and was killed in action at the Battle of Pea Ridge in 1862.

John Jones in Platte City

John Jones was a member of the 1st Missouri State Militia and was killed in action at the Battle of Pea Ridge in 1862.

John Jones was a member of the 1st Missouri State Militia and was killed in action at the Battle of Pea Ridge in 1862.

John Jones

John Jones was a member of the 1st Missouri State Militia and was killed in action at the Battle of Pea Ridge in 1862.

John Jones was a member of the 1st Missouri State Militia and was killed in action at the Battle of Pea Ridge in 1862.

John Jones was a member of the 1st Missouri State Militia and was killed in action at the Battle of Pea Ridge in 1862.

John Jones was a member of the 1st Missouri State Militia and was killed in action at the Battle of Pea Ridge in 1862.

Made possible by a grant from the State of Missouri.